I can remember hearing stories that my older sister would tell me about college and all the incredible, life-long friends she was making throughout her college career. Do not overload yourself with extracurricular activities.

Then think about how long you have to save for. It works wonders. I mean, your scholarships and grants are paying for it. You do not want to flunk out or start off with a not-so-good GPA your first semester. Many people at school are there for you. I spent my freshman year not joining all the clubs I wanted to because I was scared. The organizations and groups on campus are there for people to join. Be cool, okay?
